FOREWORD

1. Under the powers vested in the Governor by Section 3(i) of the Census Ordinance I was appointed on 28th October 1981 to be Commissioner to take the Census for Gibraltar as specified in the Census Order.
2. The Order required that the Census shall be in respect of all persons resident in Gibraltar on the night of Monday the 9th day of November 1981.
3. The arrangements were made in pursuance of this Order and the Census was taken on the appointed date. The results are contained in this Report which I have the honour to submit in accordance with Section 5 of the Census Ordinance.
4. I wish to record my appreciation of the Senior Census Officers - Major Heybourne from H.M. Services; Messrs I Chellaram, R Chichon from the Economic Planning and Statistics Office; and C Polson on secondment from the Immigration Department. Their efficiency and hard work ensured a successful Census. I express my gratitude to the enumerators and coders in carrying out their duties cheerfully and satisfactorily, to Mr E Montado (Economic Adviser and Government Statistician) for his many useful comments, and to Mr R Garcia (Establishment Division) for his research into past Censuses and his interesting paper shown under the contents of this Report as "Historical".
5. Finally I wish to place on record the high degree of co-operation given by householders in completing the Census schedule.

HISTORICAL
THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY

Each census of the past can give a most fascinating insight into aspects of Gibraltar's history. The details that are recorded, and the years when a census was taken, afford a glimpse of how the Rock's population arrived in Gibraltar and how it grew and developed.

The taking of a census in Gibraltar dates to before the eighteenth century. However, the earliest census of the whole civilian population which has survived is that of 1753. The results then were: British 434; Genoese 597; Jews 575; Spaniards 185, and Portuguese 25.

By 1767 the census divided the population into three categories: British and Protestant; Roman Catholics; and Jews. That was to remain the standard classification for the rest of the 18th century. The 1767 figures cover the civil inhabitants "within the walls or out at Landport". The total then was 2710 - 467 British, 1460 Roman Catholics and 783 Jews.

Ten years later, in 1777, the census became more complex. Not only did the abstract list the three religious categories; the population was now divided into those of "British Blood" and those of "Alien Blood", and further subdivided into "Natives" and "Not Natives". The total figure was then 3201, of which 506 were Protestant (all of "British Blood"), 1832 were Roman Catholics (all except 13 of whom were of "Alien Blood") and 863 were Jews (all of "Alien Blood"). 1334 of the inhabitants were natives.

The original 1777 list is still extant. It was taken at General Boyd's command in February. The most interesting category is that of the Roman Catholic inhabitants, as it lists the country of birth of each person. These are the figures:

English and Irish	13
Minorkeens*	62
Natives	845
Genoese and Savoyards	672
Portugueze*	93
Spaniards	134

*These are the spellings of the original list.

The 1777 census book contains an alphabetical listing of all the inhabitants by religion - first British and Protestants, second Roman Catholics and third Jews. The information recorded per person was the surname, first name, age, country of birth (and hence the nationality of the person), occupation, years in the Garrison and remarks. The Scots today would probably object vehemently to the description of their country as recorded in 1777: North Britain! This, of course, was the result of the rebellions in the North which resulted in the eliminating of the word Scotland from all official documents.

Some of the occupations recorded are quaint: there was one oysterman, there were mantua makers, hucksters, sutlers, patrons (i.e. boat skippers), soil carriers, lamplighters, lime burners and a "Teacher of the Italian". The remarks column shows that the census was updated as a record of the population of Gibraltar. This was done after the Great Siege of 1779-1783, when it was necessary to know how many people had survived or returned. Thus one finds little snippets of information such as "Dead", "gone and returned", "Kill'd by a shell", "Deserted during siege to the Enemy", "Taken Pris^r by the Span^{ds}", "order'd away", "flogg'd out for a rape".

Perhaps one of the most fascinating details is the commencement of the list of the Jewish inhabitants of 1777. It reads:-

Aboab Isaac	65 born: Tetuan	Merchant	57 yrs in Gibraltar
Aboab Hannah	50 born: Gibraltar	Wife	-
Aboab Simha	28 born: Tetuan	"	15 yrs in Gibraltar

This detail shows that English law, which forbids bigamy, was not yet fully operative on the Rock.

The next count recorded was in 1787. The population had increased then by 185 to 3386, of whom 512 were British, 2098 were Roman Catholic and 776 were Jews. Within four years, however, there was a sharp drop in the population. John Raleigh the Civil Secretary issued the following notice, dated 8 February 1791, in both English and Spanish:-

"The Governor thinking it proper that a correct list of the present Inhabitants and Residentiaries in the Garrison shall be immediately made out; Therefore the Inhab^{ts} and residentiaries of every country and class are hereby required to send into this Office forthwith the names and numbers of each house, family and habitation, including children, servants, tenants, undertenants and lodgers, distinguishing their age, place of nativity and occupation, term of residence and by what Governor or Commander in Chief's permission each foreigner came here."

"The Governor likewise requires the number of Mules, Buros Horses, Cows, Goats and Sheep at this time in the inhabitants possession: These returns may be dropt into the letter Box address'd to the Secretary, and the Governor hopes there will be no omission".

In addition, at the time, supplementary lists were also made. Examples are the list of Inhabitants Houses of 1778 and the list of Garrison Seamen of 1792.

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY (to 1868)

The earliest nineteenth century census that has survived is the 1814 one. It reveals a trebling of the population to 10,136. The main reason for this was that during the Napoleonic wars, Gibraltar was the only port open in Europe for the passage of British goods to other European countries. This naturally attracted a large merchant and trading population.

The 1814 figure of 10,136 would have been even greater had it not been for the fact that about three-fifths of the population was wiped out by the yellow fever epidemic of 1804, and again more than one-tenth of the population died in the 1813 epidemic. These epidemics point to the overcrowding and poor housing which were recorded in detail in a later census.

That the 1814 population was largely composed of recent arrivals is indicated by the breakdown of the figure: only 1191 people were of British birth or origin and only 1851 were native Christians of alien origin. The great majority of the recent arrivals came from Genoa.

The early nineteenth century saw several other sudden decreases in population due to epidemic. Thus, there is a note in the Colonial Secretary's book, "In 1828 the Garrison became overcrowded and was devastated by a 'fearful epidemic'". Nevertheless, the police count for 1829 indicated a total civil population of 16,394.

This period, then, saw the development of the police counts. Gibraltar was divided into different areas and registers were kept of the inhabitants of the various districts. These registers recorded all arrivals and departures.

The 1834 census was based on the police districts. The count of the population was no longer a complete alphabetical list by religion, but a listing by the areas where people lived.

FROM 1868 TO DATE

The modern census dated from 1868, when "The Census of the Population Ordinance, 1868" was enacted. This laid down the basis for the decennial census. These census reports, beginning with the 1871 census, were now printed for easy accessibility.

The 1878 census records that "Aliens" were allowed into Gibraltar on 1st and 2nd class Permits and with Fishermen's Badges. These latter remind one that up to 1840 the fishermen of the Genoese fleet would be based at Catalan Bay for the duration of the fishing season. At that time, there was no road leading to Catalan Bay and there was no easy access except by sea. The companies of fishermen would erect temporary shelters on the beach for the duration of their stay, or they would live in caves. Naturally, some fishermen stayed on even after the season ended. By 1878, of course, there was already a permanent village at Catalan Bay.

One of the tables missing from the 1878 report is the one covering the population of the convict establishment. This is because the establishment was disbanded in 1875, thirty years after its foundation, when convicts were no longer sent out to Gibraltar from the United Kingdom. The establishment was 552 strong in 1871. At its peak, it numbered about 900. Convict labour was used to build the existing Line Wall, the white stone sea wall that was built close to or on top of the older Spanish and Moorish sea walls. Some of the convicts were released after their sojourn in Gibraltar, others were sent on to Australia.

The 1878 population tables divide the civil population into four districts: the Town; the Rock; the South; and North Front and Catalan Bay. These enumeration areas were gradually to increase in number.

1891 is the next key date. For the first time, the census covered the Port and Harbour, including the people living on board the stationary craft in the Bay e.g. Hulks, pontoons and lighters. They numbered 759, out of a Civil population of 19,100 and the Military population of 5,896.

At this time, it was the Registrar of Births who acted as Census Commissioner, a situation which remained unchanged until the 1951 census. In his 1891 report, the Registrar - James C Gordon - informed the Colonial Secretary:-

"As compared with the Decennial Census taken in 1881, the increase of the Civil population of the town is 719, which is even more than could reasonably have been expected when it is considered that overcrowding has existed for many years and that building space is very limited. On the other hand stagnation in trade has lately caused emigration to the states of South America to some extent, and numbers of native families have, within the last few years, taken up their residence in the neighbouring town of La Linea on account of its less expensive house rent and the want of accommodation here."

These facts, together with the severe limiting of residence permits, help to explain why the population did not increase appreciably between 1871 and 1931.

Some of the occupations listed in the 1891 Census shed light on Gibraltar's way of life. There were still 29 Goatherds (as opposed to 49 in 1871) and 4 Livery Stable Keepers. Merchants were listed as

Furniture	15
Indian Goods	3
Matting	2
Gloves	1

Dealers in	Crockery	9
	Moorish Curiosities	8
	Boots and Shoes	3
	Wines, Spirits and Beer	45

There were also 8 Car Proprietors (ie carriages) and 8 Soda Water Manufacturers.

Table IX of that Census demonstrates the overcrowding there was in 1891. For example, there were 37 households where seven people lived in one room, and 88 where seven people lived in two rooms. There were also 58 households where six people lived in one room, and 118 where six people lived in two rooms. The Enumerators for this census were the three Sanitary Inspectors.

The British Government required a census of the British Empire on or near the 2nd April 1911. The Gibraltar census questionnaire was altered slightly to come into line with the requirements of this census and information on houses, religion and education, not recorded in the 1901 census, was now sought.

In 1921, the enumerators were no longer the Sanitary Inspectors: For the first time the police performed this task. It was a logical move: after all the Police had been keeping records of the population in the town, which was divided into Wards. There were 27 Police Districts in all. In addition, the South District was divided into 11 districts. All together, these districts formed four Wards. North Front and Catalan Bay formed a fifth Ward.

The 1931 Census showed, for the first time, two separate listings on the job side: one was an industry classification and the other an occupational classification. However, one key factor - which was mentioned in the covering report - was that there were 6,000 daily workers coming into Gibraltar from Spain and these did not figure in any of the tables.

No census was taken in 1941, because of the Second World War. A large proportion of the population, estimated at about 16,700, was evacuated to the United Kingdom, Madeira, Jamaica and Tangier. This included all women and children. Although the majority of the people returned, some preferred to stay on after the evacuation. The repatriation lasted from April 1944 to early 1951, during which period 15,700 persons returned from the main evacuation centres. This all made the 1951 census more important in establishing actual numbers after the upheavals caused by the war.

Since 1951, the changes in the taking of the census have been slight. No longer is the Registrar of Births the Census Commissioner. In 1951 it was the Director of Labour and Social Security. In 1961 it was the Chief Assistant Secretary. In 1970, and again this year, the Census Commissioner was seconded from the Overseas Development Administration. The number of Enumeration Areas has increased from 16 Civil districts in 1951, to 20 in 1961, to 64 in 1970. The enumerators have also changed. In 1951, the Police were still performing the task. In 1961, it was done by 13 policemen and 7 rent collectors. In 1970, the enumerators were drawn from Departmental office staff.

The 1970 census was a year early. The reason for this was the Spanish Government's closure of the border between Gibraltar and Spain on 9 June 1969, with the consequent sudden withdrawal of the Spanish labour force of 4,666 men who had previously entered Gibraltar daily to work. (They constituted over one-third of Gibraltar's work force.) Gibraltar was then finally and totally cut off from Spain, on 26 June, with the suspension of the direct ferry link from Algeciras and the Spanish Government's refusal to allow a British ferry to ply the route.

An additional new factor, since the 1961 census, was that approximately 800 persons previously residing in the neighbouring Spanish area moved into Gibraltar in 1965 as a result of the Spanish restrictions. The 1970 census provided some much-needed information on Gibraltar's population, manpower and employment (including second jobs). With the 1981 census, the original time rhythm has been restored.

1981 CENSUS REPORT

1. 1981 Census Planning and Organisation.

On the 22nd October, 1981, an order of the Governor in Council was issued under Section 2 of the Census Ordinance requiring a census to be taken of all persons present in Gibraltar on the night of Monday, 9th November, 1981.

For convenience in distributing and collecting the census schedules all persons in Gibraltar were classified under four main groups, viz:-

1. British Servicemen and their families;
2. United Kingdom based civilian employees of the Ministry of Defence and their families;
3. Residents and visitors residing in institutions such as hotels, hostels, hospitals; and
4. Civilian members of households not included above.

A Senior Census Officer appointed by the Services was responsible for the delivery and collection of the census schedules for groups 1. and 2. above. A Senior Census Officer was made responsible for the institutions, and two Senior Census Officers dealt with general administration and the enumeration of households.

To ensure the complete enumeration of all persons in group 4, Gibraltar was divided into 64 enumeration areas, excluding institutions. In most cases an enumerator was allocated to one enumeration area; in a few cases, where an area was large two or more enumerators were allocated to an area, and where the population of an area was found to be small, two or more of such areas were allocated to one enumerator. Most of the enumerators were civil servants, but a number of young unemployed persons of both sexes who had recently left school were also appointed. It is a pleasure to say that they did an excellent job. Each enumerator was given a map of his or her area and the latest available list of streets and houses in the area. A copy of the "Instructions to Enumerators" (see Appendix I) was provided and meetings were held with enumerators and the questions in the census schedules were explained and discussed.

Towards the end of October a "Notice to Householders" (see Appendix II) was mailed to all addresses explaining briefly the purpose of the census and the arrangements for delivering and collecting the forms. In early November publicity was given through the press, television and radio. The Director of Education also arranged for the older children in senior schools to attend classes where the purpose of the census was explained and instructions given on how to complete the census form. It was hoped that such instruction would, where necessary, enable pupils to help their parents or friends.

The delivery of forms began on Monday 2nd November and was completed in most cases by the Friday night. Through advertisements in the press and radio and TV announcements, persons who had not received a form were asked to call or contact the Census Office. The collection of forms began on Tuesday 10th November and enumerators were instructed to return all Schedules by Saturday 14th November; by which date over 95% of the forms had been returned. During the week beginning 16th November an all-out effort was made to collect the outstanding forms and when a halt had to be called only 33 out of nearly 8800 forms were still not returned; some had been delivered to households who were still not returned; some had been delivered to households who were away from Gibraltar and the house was temporarily uninhabited.

The editing and coding of the schedules began on 16th November and was completed within three weeks. Editing revealed that a number of forms were incomplete (ages, occupation etc omitted) and the answers to some questions were vague. Most omissions and queries were settled by a visit to the household or a telephone call; householders had been asked to give their telephone number. The coded schedules were sent to London by plane on the 15th December and confidentiality was ensured by explaining them as a diplomatic consignment. The processing in the UK was undertaken by the Overseas Development Administration (ODA) and was paid for by the Government of the United Kingdom. The processing and tabulation was completed by the 22nd October 1982.

2. Definition of the Population.

The definition of the population is that given in the census of 1961 and 1970. This ensures continuity and comparison with earlier years. Persons present in Gibraltar on census night included resident civilians, servicemen and their families, visitors from abroad and persons in transit. The figures for servicemen are omitted.

For persons in transit only a count was made and for visitors from overseas only the basic questions 1. to 6. on the schedule were asked. Table 6 gives information about visitors. Comparison with the census figures of October 1970 shows that the number of visitors has fallen, and this is understandable since October is the end of the tourist season and November is out of season.

The wives and families of servicemen are residents of Gibraltar for an average period of about two years. They are not permanent residents whose educational, health and other public needs are the responsibility of the Gibraltar Government. In consequence there is little purpose in giving a detailed analysis of their characteristics and the data in Tables 2, 22 and 23 is believed to be sufficient. This same argument could be applied to the UK based civilian employees of MOD and their families who are also temporary residents. However, they have been included in the resident population in order to continue past practice and provide comparisons with the earlier censuses.

The residents which include all persons, except servicemen and their families, visitors from overseas and transients are referred to as the "Population" and their characteristics are analysed in detail. The de-facto figures for the census count are as follows:

Gibraltarians	19,825
British, Other than Gibraltarians*	3,706
Non-British	2,923
Nationality Not stated	25
	<hr/>
Population	26,479
Wives and Families of Servicemen	2,265
Visitors	726
Transients	146
	<hr/>
Persons present in Gibraltar on Census Night 9 November 1981	29,616

*excludes wives and families of Servicemen
(and, of course, Servicemen)

3. Nationality.

Most of the tables in this report show the characteristics of the population under four main nationality headings; British Gibraltar, British Other, Moroccan and Other Non-British. Countries have different nationality laws, and the rules and regulations are often quite complicated. Most people have no difficulty in stating their nationality, but a few have difficulties and can be mistaken. As an example, take a family consisting of husband, wife, son and daughter. The husband is British, he was born in the United Kingdom and holds a valid British passport. The coding of his nationality would be "British Other". His wife was born in Gibraltar and is also a descendant of a male person father or grandfather, who is entitled to be registered, or is registered, as a Gibraltarian. The wife can enter on the form British UK, through marriage, or British Gibraltar under Part 1 Section 6 of the Gibraltarian Status Ordinance (1964 Edition). Both are correct, but for the purposes of this census, British Gibraltar would be coded. The children, one born in UK and the other in Gibraltar are, unless registered as Gibraltarians, not entitled to be Gibraltarian and their nationality is that of their father, British UK, coded as "Other British".

In the 1970 census a person born and resident in Gibraltar was accepted as Gibraltarian if it was so stated on the census form and there was no obvious reason to question it. Such a procedure, as shown in the example above, can produce errors, though the number of errors would not be large. In this present census the coding of nationality was given careful attention and every effort was made to interpret a person's nationality in accordance with the regulations on "entitlement" given in Part I of the Gibraltarian Status Ordinance.

4. Demographic Data

In the previous census the life expectancy of civilian males and females were calculated on the basis of the data available at the time. Since the 1970 census reliable vital statistics on births and deaths have been collected and it is possible to make estimates for the resident civilian population, which is defined narrowly here as Gibraltarians, Other British excluding UK based civilians, and Other Non-British excluding Moroccans. The figures given below are then not strictly comparable with the 1970 figures.

These figures are based on the average number of deaths for each age group over the years 1980 and 1981 and the estimated population by age group at 1 January 1981. Given the variability of the number of deaths from year to year the above life expectancy must not be taken as exact and constant figures over time. It is however reasonable to assume that the expectancy of life at birth for men is at least 70 and for women 75.

5. Manpower.

The occupational and industrial classifications used in this report, with only a few minor amendments, are those used in the 1970 census and are based on the International Standard Classifications of Occupations and Industry published by the United Nations. In consequence, the data for 1981 can be compared directly with the data for 1970. The manpower data for 1981 has been substantially increased, particularly for sectors and nationality. The Table on apprenticeships should be interpreted carefully. Firstly, the apprenticeship served in many cases does not relate to the present occupation. Secondly, for persons stating that they had served an apprenticeship it was accepted even though it may or may not have been a formal apprenticeship.

6. Qualifications.

In the previous census educational level and qualifications were asked for on the census form and attention was drawn in the report to the difficulties of comparing standards by reference to types of school. The Department of Education and other possible users confirmed that they had made very little reference to the tables in the 1970 report giving the numbers who had attended the secondary, grammar, technical schools and institutions. All users, however, stated that the tables by qualifications were important and necessary. In this report analysis by qualifications is given in a number of tables and analysis by type of school omitted.

7. Housing, Facilities, etc.

Tables showing the distribution of households by types of dwelling, tenure, number of rooms, facilities etc make sense in regard to houses and flats but little sense in regard to institutions such as hotels, hostels, hospitals etc. The analyses in consequence are restricted to what has been earlier referred to as group 4, households. Service families and the families of UK based civilians employed by MOD live mainly in quarters provided by their employers and single persons mainly in messes. These dwellings are excluded from the analysis as being of little direct relevance to the problems of the Gibraltar Government in estimating the housing and health needs of the resident population. Furthermore, if requested and needed, the MOD could provide the housing information. In fact, many of the Census forms returned by the services did include data on housing but the information was not processed.

Most owners of boats are sole owners and shared or joint ownership was negligible. This question on ownership of boats arose out of the growing number of boats and the need for mooring facilities. Moreover, as compared with the last census, when hardly any resident families lived permanently on a boat, this time there were 61. Many more boats were occupied by visitors.

8. Accuracy.

In 1970 the claim was made that few households were missed, and this claim is repeated for the 1981 census. As stated previously only 33 schedules delivered to households, institutions etc, out of 8800 were unaccounted for; a figure which is under 0.4%. Since a number of these schedules were later found to relate to families away from Gibraltar, the number of persons missed is less than 0.4%.

As a total count of the numbers of persons in Gibraltar on the night of Monday, 9th November, the figure is remarkably good and better than the census counts in most countries of the world. The reliability of the census is not, however, restricted to the total count; the figures relating to numbers by sex, age, nationality, occupation, industry etc, are also of high quality and accuracy. This accuracy was attained because most people know their ages and the Economic Planning and Statistics Office had earlier given an industrial code for all establishments. Vague occupational descriptions were queried and solved either by telephone calls or visits and stated occupations were queried if the qualifications did not match the job. Nationality was, as stated previously, coded in accordance with the Gibraltarian Status Ordinance. Every entry coded on the forms was checked by a different coder.

9. Errors and omissions.

In spite of every endeavour and careful editing of the census schedules and checking of the coding and punching, some errors and omissions always escape the scrutiny of the most conscientious staff. This has happened in this census; and it is so in all censuses. The number of errors and omissions which have been traced in the tables are surprisingly few and are so relatively small that they can be ignored and in no case do they affect the validity and reliability of the data. However, an explanation of these errors and omissions, however small, should be of interest to users of the many tables in this report.

(i) Tables 2: 1.3, etc.

Some persons failed to state their nationality and some their sex. For example in the row "age less than 1 year" the table for males shows 145 Gibraltarians, 31 other British, no Moroccans and 1 other Non-British; a total of 177 males. The male total for this row is, however, shown as 178, the difference of 1 representing a person whose sex (male) was given but his nationality omitted from the schedule. This could have been shown more clearly in the table if another column had been added for "Nationality Not Stated". This however would have resulted in smaller print and an untidy table. The decision was to present the table as published, since the omission of the "Nationality Not Stated" column in no way affects the significance of any figure. In total the nationality was omitted for only 9 males and 8 females.

In addition the sex and nationality of 8 persons were omitted from the schedule, but their details could have been shown with the addition of columns for "Sex Not Stated". This again would have led to smaller print to accommodate this information and was rejected. The figure of 8 in this case is the difference between the sum of the male and female totals i.e. $13,824 + 12,647 = 26,471$ and the total under "All" of 26,479. Together these omissions total 25 out of 26,479, a negligible figure.

These comments apply to other tables showing characteristics by nationality or sex or both. Any alterations to the tables would have involved time and cost with little, if any, gains.

(ii) Table 8 etc.

As in Table 2 there are omissions. In this case 5 males and 7 females failed to state their nationality, and 7 persons their sex and nationality. Thus out of a total of 20,805 persons, aged 15 and over, only 19 failed to enter the relevant information on their census schedules.

(iii) Public Sector.

In the Public Sector the tables on occupation show 1 street vendor and a working hotel owner. These are obvious errors, but the cost of amending these would have been costly and hardly worthwhile. Again, 7 persons who entered "porter" on their form were shown as hotel porters when they should have been treated as medical porters, and 7 "musicians" under the heading "entertainers etc" who were music and drama teachers should have been included strictly as "teachers". The NAAFI has always been classified by the Economic Planning and Statistics Office as part of the Public Sector and this practice was followed to ensure continuity. This accounts for some shop assistants being entered under the Public Sector.

(iv) Qualifications.

One Civil Engineer is shown as having no professional qualification. This is unlikely but possible. In only a few occupations does the law require a prescribed formal qualification; an example is a Doctor. In other professional occupations a formal qualification is designated as desirable but it is not mandatory. Some years ago a person was appointed to the chair of a university even though he did not possess the formal qualifications associated with the post. His published writings, however, adequately revealed his knowledge and competence.

POPULATION AND HOUSING CENSUS 1981

INSTRUCTIONS TO ENUMERATORS

GENERAL

Personal Responsibility

(1) You have signed an agreement to act as an enumerator and your appointment as such has been approved by the Governor. You are now responsible for the proper performance of your duties as a Census enumerator in accordance with the provisions of the Census Ordinance, acting under the direction of the Census Commissioner.

Courteous and conciliatory manner essential

(2) Your manner should be courteous and tactful when delivering and collecting the Householders' Schedules. When delivering the Schedules give any explanations that may be asked for and request the Occupier to ensure that the completed Schedule is ready for collection by Tuesday, 10th November, 1981.

Contents of Schedules strictly confidential

(3) The Census Ordinance forbids the disclosure or communication to any person other than the Commissioner and the appointed Census Officers of the contents of any Schedule, or of any statistical information acquired by you in the course of your Census duties. Any breach of this instruction is an offence under this Ordinance and renders you liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding £100 or to imprisonment not exceeding six months, or to both such fine and imprisonment.

DUTIES BEFORE MONDAY 9th NOVEMBER

Study of Instructions, Memorandum Book and Schedules

(4) Read these instructions carefully in conjunction with the Memorandum Book and Schedules. A talk will be given to study the notes and explanations on the Schedule, and each question on the Schedule will be examined and discussed in detail. You should then be competent to answer any questions that are put to you and to assist the householder, where necessary, to complete the Schedule. At this talk, or at any time, you should raise any points which are not clear to you.

Enumeration of Households and Institutions, except those enumerated by the Services

(5) The Schedule must include:-

- (a) Every person present in the household or institution on the night of 9th November, 1981 and alive at midnight.

- (b) Any person of the household or institution who, although not in the dwelling or tenement during the Census night, but who was in Gibraltar and had not been enumerated elsewhere, (e.g. policemen, watchmen, and others on night duty on the Census night) and patients in hospitals in Gibraltar.
 - (c) Members of the Gibraltar Regiment, notwithstanding that they may be resident in, or on duty on, military premises and will not necessarily be at their homes on Census night.
- (6) The Schedule must not include:-
- (a) Any person who had died before midnight on the Census night.
 - (b) Any child born after midnight on the Census night.
 - (c) Any resident who was absent from Gibraltar on the Census night.

To avoid duplication enumerators will be given a list of Service Families living in civilian accommodation within their respective districts to whom they do not serve Schedules. Members of the Gibraltar Regiment and their families are NOT included in this arrangement, and should be dealt with as in paragraph 5 (c).

ENUMERATION OF U.K. BASED CIVILIAN EMPLOYEES OF THE SERVICES DEPARTMENTS

(8) The arrangements as set out in paragraph 7 apply to U.K. based civilian employees of the Services Departments.

BOUNDARIES AND CONTENTS OF YOUR ENUMERATION AREA

(9) Acquaint yourself with the boundaries and contents of your enumeration area and make certain that you know exactly the area for which you are responsible. If you are in any doubt as to the precise boundaries of the area allocated to you, you should consult the Commissioner or Census officers without delay.

THE DELIVERY OF SCHEDULES

(10) Take particular care to arrange a convenient route by which you can visit every dwelling and enumerate every person within your area and be certain that no occupied premises are omitted.

(11) The number of your area and the serial or household number must be inserted on the front of each Schedule. Before delivering a Schedule write on it, in the space provided, the name and address of the Head of the family or occupier. Enter in the first column of your Memorandum Book the number of the Schedule (if a household requires more than one Schedule enter the same household number on each Schedule but note in your Memorandum Book that you have left two or more Schedules) and complete the remaining columns of the Memorandum Book when you collect the forms.

PERSONS WHO ARE TO RECEIVE SCHEDULES

(12) (a) Every head of a household occupying the whole, or separately occupying part, of a house or flat.

(b) Every separate lodger occupying a room or rooms in a house or flat NOT BOARDING with a family in the house. (Not boarding should be interpreted as not sharing meals with the occupier or his family).

(c) Every outdoor servant (with or without family) occupying separately any building, such as a lodge, etc., which is detached from the house to which it belongs or has no internal communication therewith.

(d) Every proprietor, manager, or head of any hotel, hostel, club, business establishment, school etc., unless the commissioner has notified you otherwise.

ENTRIES IN THE MEMORANDUM BOOK AT TIME OF COLLECTION

(14) You must collect every Schedule that you have delivered and show that you have done so by inserting a tick in the appropriate column of your Memorandum Book. If the occupier has left the premises, you must strike out the name and insert in the column the reason, e.g. "Family removed," "Family on Holiday," etc. If no one is occupying the premises, write the address and, in the remarks column write "Vacant".

SCHEDULES LOST OR OMITTED TO BE SUPPLIED

(15) Should you find that an occupier had not received a Schedule or that the Schedule delivered had been lost or mislaid you must supply one from your reserve stock and request the occupier or person in charge of the premises to fill it up. If necessary you must enter the particulars yourself. If the Schedule is a duplicate to replace a lost schedule, then enter the household number of the original schedule on the duplicate and write in the remarks column of your Memorandum Book "Duplicate". If the occupier had not received a schedule enter the next unallocated household number on the schedule and write "Previously Omitted" in the remarks column of your Memorandum Book.

EXAMINATION OF SCHEDULES

(16) On collecting a Schedule examine it carefully and satisfy yourself that it has been correctly and completely filled in.

INCOMPLETE OR INACCURATE INFORMATION

(17) If the Schedule is incomplete, inaccurate or illegible, you must ask any questions necessary for you to complete or correct it. When making corrections a line should be drawn through the erroneous entry and the corrections written legibly and initialled. No erasures should be made.

Every effort must be made to obtain full particulars but if full particulars cannot be obtained concerning any person, such persons must not on that account be omitted from the Schedule, but the letters "N.K." (Not Known) must be entered in the column or columns for which the information is not obtainable.

REFUSAL TO FILL UP THE SCHEDULE

(18) Should anyone refuse to fill up the Schedule or answer the questions which you are authorised to ask, draw the attention of any such persons to the instructions to the Occupier contained on the front of the Schedule which states that refusal to give such information makes them liable to a fine of fifty pounds. Should the person still refuse to give information, do not engage in any dispute but write in your Memorandum Book "Information Refused" and report the matter as early as possible to the Commissioner or Census officers.
