PRESS RELEASE

No. 463/2012

Date: 20th July 2012

Gibraltarpedia – the volunteer work begins

Directors from Wikimedia UK will be in Gibraltar on Monday and Tuesday of next week to offer their assistance to all those persons interested in volunteering for the Gibraltarpedia project.

They will explain in detail how to contribute to Wikipedia and Gibraltarpedia and will be available to answer questions. Interested members of the public are encouraged to attend and see for themselves the value and scope of this project which will place Gibraltar on the international map at an unprecedented level.

Members from all of Gibraltar's diverse communities are encouraged to attend as the multicultural and multilingual dimensions are major components of the project.

Those attending can do so without commitment as attending does not require that participants then must contribute. Those attending are encouraged to bring their laptops if they have them but this is not a requirement either. The idea is to involve as much of the community as possible in this exciting initiative.

These sessions will take place at the John Mackintosh Hall on Monday 23rd July and Tuesday 24th July. These sessions will be held at 10.00 am and repeated at 6.00 pm on both days and are free of charge.
