No. 522/2014

Date: 30th September 2014

The Department of the Environment announces the launch of the Kids Zone Section of the THINKING GREEN website and its new RECYCLING GAME.

The Government's vision for a sustainable future is a rich, diverse & healthy environment in Gibraltar for present and future generations to enjoy. In line with HM Government of Gibraltar's commitment to greater environmental awareness and a need for action locally, the Department of the Environment is proud to announce the launch of a new addition to the Thinking Green website, our KIDS ZONE.

This section aims to provide our younger generation with a comprehensive selection of articles pertaining to all aspects of Gibraltar's local environment. The information currently ranges from articles relating to our diverse biodiversity to online games encouraging greater environmental awareness. Information will continue to be posted on a regular basis by the Department of the Environment in order to help our younger generation catch up on trending environmental issues.

In addition, the Department of the Environment has created a new fun and educational recycling game that can be played by children and adults alike. The Gibraltar Recycling game aims to increase recycling awareness by means of an interactive game that informs the public on how to recycle items using the different coloured bins provided in Gibraltar. This game is available on the Thinking Green Website [www.thinkinggreen.gov.gi] and can be played directly from your computer.
