News from HM Customs

The Collector of Customs recently presented certificates to officers who had successfully qualified as single engined RHIB coxswains. As part of their development training, officers will now progress onto vessels with twin and triple engines. Members of the Department of the Environment's Marine Protection Section also participated in this training.

This training is delivered by local HM Customs instructors and covers the use of interceptor vessels in law enforcement scenarios. These courses are fully endorsed by the Gibraltar Maritime Administration.

Also, the Acting Chief Minister the Hon Dr J Cortes has recently visited the Customs Training Section and presented warrant cards to officers who had completed their eleven week recruit training programme. This is the fourth of five scheduled intakes for 2015, forming part of the HM Customs modernisation programme.
