Gibraltar Port Authority Bunkering Superintendent Undergoes Continuation Training

The Gibraltar Port Authority (GPA) Bunkering Superintendent Mr. Victor Calderon recently attended a bunker training course at Oxford offered by Petrosport Academy. The course programme included a range of high-quality lectures on the technical, operational, commercial, financial and legal aspects of bunkering, including case studies, discussion groups and practical demonstrations

The Oxford Bunker Course is a world-renowned five-day intensive residential training course, designed for newcomers to the business and for those who may already have some experience. The course is taught by well-known professionals with many years of experience in the bunker industry, spanning every discipline within the international bunker industry. During the week, all students meet and work with the experts and have an extraordinary opportunity to build long-term relationships with their peers from all sectors of the business.

CEO and Captain of the Port, Commodore Bob Sanguinetti stated that 'this investment in training once again shows the appropriate commitment and high priority given to the bunkering industry, in line with the importance of bunkering to the Port of Gibraltar.'

The Minister for Maritime Affairs, the Hon Gilbert Licudi QC MP, added that he was 'pleased to note that continuation training forms a fundamental part of the Port's professional development programme.'
